Working with us

Longevity will change the way our society functions in the future. Our Partners help us to shape and influence policy and practice across all sectors.

Membership of our Partners Programme also provides:

Business intelligence: we'll give you advance notice of our latest research, ad hoc briefings on areas of specific interest to your organisation, as well as a discount on any research you commission from us.

Networks and connections: our Partners events have included visits to Number 10, briefings with prominent influencers, as well as the opportunity to meet ministers, policy experts and fellow Partners.

Brand benefits: as a Partner your brand will be visible through our numerous events, press releases and presentations, and give you the opportunity to be positioned at the heart of the debate on longevity.

Changing with us

We can help your organisation to plan for the future in the light of demographic change. Whether you're in business, not-for-profit or a charity, we have the expertise and connections to help you to think about what longevity means for you.

We well as being widely connected across sectors in the UK, we are also part of a vibrant international network of longevity centres, able to tap into best practice and policy ideas from across the globe.

Our Partners events bring together policy makers, decision makers and practitioners from across government, business and the third sector who want to make change happen.

As a Partner, you not only benefit from our expertise, you also have the opportunity to shape our agenda, and what happens next.

Our current Partners

International Longevity Centre UK

The ILC is the UK's specialist think tank on the impact of longevity on society, and what happens next.

We believe society has to adapt now so we can all enjoy the benefits of longevity. We want a society that works for everyone, regardless of their age.

We know the numbers. We know the challenges. What happens next will define us for generations.

"They are very inclusive, very open,
very construction and thoughtful.
They have always been very constructive partners whilst retaining a lot of expertise and independence."
